FUEL ADJUSTMENT FACTOR (FAF) – UPDATE

Good afternoon,

Ports of Auckland has in place a formula for calculating the Fuel Adjustment Factor (FAF) to compensate our business as and when the price of fuel fluctuates. This process has been in place since August 2006 and we have continued to keep customers informed of the trend to the changing purchase price of fuel.

Our original calculation to implement the Fuel Adjustment Factor was based on pricing as of 1 September 2006, working in bands of +/- 20%. If the six week average triggers a move up or down, the following formula applies with two week's notice of change.

Currently we are sitting in the (+21% to +40%) band. As of today's date the six week average has decreased to be in the (-20% to +20%) band. As a consequence POAL will be reducing the FAF charge to this band effective 8 July 2011.

Terminal handling rates:

Based on POAL purchase price in NZ$ as of 1 September 2006.	Charge per container handling– Full containers (Imports, Exports and Tranships).
